Policy Letter 09-03

TERM LIMITS

It is the policy of the Pacific Region effective 1 January 2010 that there shall be term limits on Flight, Squadron and Group Commanders. Commanders will serve no more than four consecutive years. The first year after appointment is considered probationary, followed by a two-year term in position. There may be a one-year extension at the Wing Commander's discretion. Wing Commanders may approve a further extension of a Flight, Squadron or Group Commander's term if deemed necessary.

PCR Wings that have a similar policy may continue with that policy until all current Command terms are completed. Any new appointment shall adhere to this policy.

For all PCR wings that do not have a term limit policy and with Commanders that have served over 4 years, a one year extension is granted. Wing Commanders may increase or decrease this one year extension as necessary to facilitate a smooth transition.

It is strongly recommended that Wing Commanders use this or a similar policy for Wing staff positions.

This policy shall remain in effect until rescinded, superseded or incorporated into other directives, policies or regulations.
